The American Society of Cinematographers is pleased to invite you to recommend eligible students for consideration in the 2009 ASC Burton "Bud" Stone Heritage Award competition. This honor is designed to inspire the next generation of cinematographers and to help them pursue their dreams. It also celebrates the memory of the film industry's most extraordinary individuals.

Eligible students must be in undergraduate or graduate school or have been graduated within the past year. (Please see enclosed Rules of Entry for further details.) A jury of ASC members will choose the winners. The Awards will be presented to the recipients at the 23rd Annual ASC Outstanding Achievement Awards celebration on February 15, 2009 at the Hyatt Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

This year's Heritage Award is dedicated to the memory of an invaluable member of the ASC family. Bud Stone was a giant in the film industry and was held in the highest regard by all. He ran Deluxe Labs for over two decades, served as the chairman of the ASC Awards for nine years and was named chairman emeritus for the last eight years. He was dedicated to the education of young cinematographers, and under his leadership the Student Heritage Awards flourished. His sincere and heartfelt commitment to the ASC was recognized in 1993 when he was named an Honorary ASC Member – a credit that has been bestowed upon only eight individuals in the Society's rich history.

Enclosed are a set of rules and instructions by which to recommend your best cinematography students. The deadline for entries is noon, October 31, 2008. If you have any questions, please contact Patty Armacost at 323-969-4333 ext. 103.

Sincerely,
Isidore Mankofsky, ASC
ASC Student Awards Committee Chairman
